They tell us when to stop, start, or pause when reading. Learning punctuation marks was an adventure! Students were introduced to punctuation marks - Full stop, Comma and Question Mark, using stick puppets. Children loved and enjoyed when these punctuation marks could talk and explain their attributes like - A full stop is like a big hug at the end of a sentence. It says, "This is the end." A comma is like a little breath between words. It helps us separate words in a list. And a question mark is like a curious face. It asks, "What's next?"
